Mr. S. S. Bloch Formally Presents the Ambulance to the City.

THE OCCASION WAS IMPRESSIVE

Phanch the Ceremonies Occurred in a Livery Stable-Mr. Block Makes a Neat Presentation Speech-Mayor J. R. Butts, Health Officer Jepson, Captain Davison and Mr. Hart Responded-An Impulse

Last evening at Erb's livery stable, on Seventeenth street, the formal pre-sentation of the new Wheeling city am-bulance, the munificent gift of Mr. Samuel S. Bloch, took place. There was quite a gathering of citizens, in addi-tion to the members of the council committees on police and health and a number of city officiels, including Mayor Butts, Health Officer Jepson and Chief ber of city officiels, including Mayor Butts, Health Officer Jepson and Chief of Police Bennett.

The ambulance, said to be the finest in America, and which has already been described in the Intelligencer, was inspected on the ground floor of the livery stable. After the vehicle had been looked at by all present, Mr. Bloch made the formal presentation speech. He said:

"Mr. Mayor and Gentlemen: It affords me great pleasure to present to the city of Wheeling this ambulance. If it shall be instrumental in saving a life or in lightening the suffering of any unfortunate enough to ride in it, I shull find my gratification. I wish to speak in this connection of the valuable assistance that I have received in equipping the ambulance from Dr. Clyde Ford, to whom I am under obligations. I hope the wasgon will not be called into use often. Mr. Mayor, I hand to you and to Health Officer Jepson the keys and a list of the articles that make up the equipment of the ambulance."

Mr. Rioch was generously applauded when he concluded, Mayor Butts accepted the keys and made brief remarks, stating that the ambulance would long be a monument to the generously of Mr. Bloch. Concluding, he said: "As mayor of the city of Wheeling, Mr. Bloch, I thank you for this munificent gift."

Mr. Horkhelmer, of the committee on like the constitution of the committee of the constitution in a light of the constitution of the committee of the constitution of the erosity of Mr. Bloch. Concluding, he sadd: "As mayor of the city of Wheellur, Mr. Bloch. I thank you for this munificent gift."

Mr. Horkhelmer, of the committee on police, suggested that Captain Davison, of the committee, be heard.

Air. Davison said he could only relterate the thanks that had been expressed by the mayor. There is an old saying that any man who makes two blades of grass grow where there was but one, is a public benefactor. Looking at this wagon, which will alleviate much suffering, the thought came to him that Mr. Bloch is a public benefactor to a far greater degree. He could not think of any gift that would be more useful; it would be the best momenent that could be eracted to the giver's memory. On behalf of the police committee and also on behalf of the police committee and also on behalf of the efficient chief of police and his efficient deputies, he would add his thanks to those of Mayor Butts.

Dr. Jepson, the city health officer, was next called upon. He did not feel that he could add anything to what had already been said. The sanitary department of the city government, which is represented, was deeply granted for the munificent gift. He had often heard that blocks are used to retard progress, but in this case a "Bloch" had figured in advancing progress. He medical fraternity of the city. They, more than others, knew the need there was for an ambulance such as has been given the city by Mr. Bloch. In concluding Dr. Jepson took occasion to add his testimony to the efficiency of the police force in adding physicians in emergency cases.

Mr. Horkheimer suggested that Mr. Charles lighted the thanks on behalf or the medical restrictions of the police force in adding physicians in emergency case.

add his testimony to the efficiency of the police force in aiding physicians in emergency cases.

Mr. Horkheimer suggested that Mr. Charles Burdett Hart speak on behalf of the citizens and the press. Though Mr. Hart did not feel qualified to speak for either, he did so. Foth, he said, highly appreciate this beautiful and useful gift. It is a good thing when God puts it into the hearts of good men to do good. In these days man is prone to look out for his individual good. If his good friend, Mr. Bloch, was not present he would have said that instances of good deeds for the nubile are too rare. We are prone to criticise the accumulation of wealth. He believed an All-Wise Being knows better than we of the earth, and there are often instances that show great wealth has fallen into good hands.

The city is recarded by so many as a great machine in bulk, and many think that everything should be done through the meaning of the great good that could be accomplished by many men if they held different views. It is a good sign, said the speaker, to see a man give out of his private means for the public good as Mr. Bloch has given. Concluding, he man substance of the great good that outling he was selfish enough to wish for the moment that he were standing in Mr. Bloch's shoes.

After the committee returned to the

Mr. Bloch's shoes.

After the committee returned to the city hall from Erb's, a Joint session was held at the office of the chief of police, with Mr. List in the chair. Mr. Davison offered a resolution that the chairmen of the committees on health and police formulate a suitable resolution of thanks to Mr. Bloch, to be reported to council, and be spread upon the minutes of that body. It was unanimously adopted.

On motion of Mr. McKelvey, after a short discussion, it was ordered that the ambulance be in the custody and control of the police department of the city, subject to any call for service from the health department. It was stated that the building for the patrol and ambulance, as originally designed, would be ready for use Tuesday, but that there would be some uncertain delay about the addition, made necessary by the lack of room in the original drawings and specifications. Chief Bennett was authorized to purchase all necessary stable fittings, such as forks, curry combs and all the small paraphernali necessary, and this will be done in a rew days.

The question of the necessary concombs and all the small paraphermalia necessary, and this will be done in a few days.

The question of the necessary enlargement of the building coming up, a sub-committee, consisting of Messra. Horkheimer and Zwicker, was appointed to confer with the health committee, which in the meantime had gone to another portion of the city hall to hold a session, and in due season the gentlemen reported that the new work would be taken up as soon as possible and pushed to completion. Meanwhile the ambulance will remain at Erbs until it can be proberly accommodated, and the horses will be fed from the cribs of the fire department, as usual. Once the new arrangements goes into effect, however, the police department will provide feed and all other necessary items for both the patrol and ambulance rigs. It will likely be a couple of weeks, however, before everything is in complete shape.

"And they are building still, seeing the city was built to music."—Imagination never disturbs existing facts.

The Woman's Musical Club gave Musical Wheeling its crowning event of the past decade, last Monday evening, when it brought Teresa Carreno, the greates woman planist, on our Opera House stage. On that evening, was undeniably stage. On that evening, was undeniably proven woman's place as an interpreter of music and composer (only the latter fact was not recognised by all at the time), but to-day this same club celebrates Woman's day, by studying her as a composer. Although woman never made an epoch in musical art, it must be said that she has done a very important work in its development. Though she has surely been great as a composer, she has surely been great and equal to any in interpretation. Mmc. Carreno demonstrated this, last Monday. Her programme gave us Bach for the intellect, Beethoven for the soul, Schubert for the heart, Schumann for the imagination, Chopin for sentiment and so on through a long list. The mission of the Woman's Club is a noble one. Through Carreno it immortalized; to all who heard the master works and furthered art, by this fatthful interpretation. Knowing now what a woman interpreter can do, to-day an upportunity will be given to know her sa a composer. Clara Schumann, Fanile Mendelssohn Besch, Chamilande Marcherst, White Temple, Holmen and the club's own composers, Blanch Dunlevy Steenrod and Flora Poliack, all will receive recognition, and the afsernoon promises to be intensely interesting. proven woman's place as an interpreter

With the next Philharmonic concert, the first season of the best music organization is at an end. That uninterruptedly, the second season should merge into the best music organization is at an end. That uninterruptedly, the second season should merge into the season season should merge into the character musical entertainment, and character musical entertainment, and character musical entertainment, and character musical entertainment, and conspicuously flavor or metropolitanism, and bring Musicat Wheeling one north higher. Reviewing the entire series of concerts of the Philarmonic Quartet, the enterprise can unqualifiedly be called an enthent success, and, as stated above, we see in it the earnest of still better things in the future.

Lust night the beautiful scene on the Opera House stage and the good work of the pupils showed that our children are taught to love music, and that we do teach music in our public schools. This is as it should be; there is no grander humanising influence in the home life than the study of music—and our growing youths—the generation of the future—are now made to feel that it is a necessity in their lives, an art of which to know nothing would be as shameful as ignorance of the battle of Bunker Hill. For the enthroncement of music in these children's hearts, and its proper place in the school curriculum, the grentest credit is due the musical director, Miss Lucy Robinson.

Is due the musical director, Miss Lucy Robinson.

Yes—Chopin did say "music is artistocratic," and it only serves to show how nonsense will pass for wisdom, if only it has some great name to back it, easys Anon. All arts are "aristocratic" if by that be meant that they are debased when moral. In this respect, music stands on a level with its sister arts, neither higher nor lower. In reality, music is the most cemocratic of all the fine arts, that which is must accessible to the masses, as well as that which they can best appreciate. An ordinary painting, not a daub, costs hundreds of dollars, and masterpieces are worth fortunes. How many have, or can have, as their own, even a statue of the masters? It is not so with music; a few dollars buy the works of the masters, at little time and study will make them part and parcel of one's being, so that they can be recalled and enjoyed, even in the stillness of the night, or the solitude of the desert, by the humble as well as by the proud, by the poor as well as by the wealthy. Musici why it is the only one of the arts that ever makes its home among the lowly; that takes even the street Arab out of the filth, ignorance and degradation which he knows too well, to give his soul an occasional glimpse of the sunshine, an occasional glimpse of the sunshine, an occasional glimpse of the sentially aristocratic; it is universal, therefore essentially democratic, Chopin to the contrary notwithstanding.

These Sunday recitals were things de youtly wished, and this consummation should be appreciatively encouraged. The performers need no presenting.

Monday and Tuesday evenings at the Opera House, the attraction will be Victor Herbert's "Wixard of the Nile." Herbert himself was heard here last December, and is delightfully remembered. His staright wattress at once became popular, and, writing the word waltes brings to mind another inquiry to be answered: Whether Mosart composed while waltring. We are not informed, but we know that he was extremely fond of displaying his skill in that accomplishment, and thought more of his superiority as a dancer than of his musical ability.

The one disappointed not to receive an answer last week, will recognize in the following that looked for: Yes, we have heard of one city destroyed by music. (God moves in mysterious ways, etc.,) but history also fells of cities built by music. Amphion is said to have built the walls of Thebes by the music of his tyre, while Illum and the capital of Arthur's kingdom were also built to divine music. And, apropos of the question which brought the Höbe into this column, Mrs. Homespun was shocked to hear one of those giddy Brownstone girls speak of Haydin as the author of "the creation." Mrs. Homespun says she doesn't know anything about Haydin, or any other faddling German.

Given by the Pupils of St. Joseph's Academy Vesterday afternoon, an entertainment was given in the music hall of St. Joseph's Academy, the occasion being the feast day of St. Joseph; the patron saint of the academy and congregation. The affair was highly interesting, and the staters of the convent were especially pleased by the fine programme prepared by the young women of the congregation. The following programme was rendered:

The Swallows. Cowen Walts Miss Gertrude Riester. Walts Miss Gertrude Riester. Walts Mandolins-Misses Sarah McLaughlin, Lily Geraghty and Mamie Lottus. Guitars-Afissea Mamie Owens, and Stella Widdle. Miss Nellis Black. My Faith Looks up to Thee. The Class Vocal Solo. Miss Margaret McFadden Lied des Pagen. Meyerbeer Miss Pagen. My Sr. Mary Anna Miss Eleaner Howley. A pleasing feature followed the conclusion of the last number. "St. Joseph's Lily," when Miss Gertrude O'Nell stepped forth and in the name of the assembled scholars, presented the principal of the academy, Mother Mary Joseph with an immense boquet of liles. There was a large astendance, and the excellent programme was carried out in a creditable manner.

AMUSEMENTS.

Herrmann the Third, nephew to Herry mann the Great, who is to appear at the Opera House to-night, traveled in all quarters of the globe, not only to play cuariers of the globe, not only to play his tricks and to please, but to be pleased. Very little that is curious, romanical or entertaining escapes lim. Among the stories which he tells is one which he avers is true concerning one of the barbaric customs of Fersia. It appears that the lateshah, who was not long since unceremoniously sent to heaven by a loving subject, had an extremely unique method of getting rid of this fractious sultanas. "When one reaches Tehoran," says Mr. Herrmann, "he goes centuries lack into the barbarisms of the east, despite the fact that the capital of the shinh is the most progressive in his kingdem. Teberan is surrounded by a high well and a moat. The ditch is dry and a fall from the top of the wall to the ground would invariably prove fatial. In these days of rearious demests slift-culties sad railed divorces, it is easy to imagine the difficulties of which a demention of the wall to the story of the sum to the difficulties of which a damerican divorce court at his disposal, he is obliged to find some other way out of his trouble. The Persian peasant is a thrifty person, and a beautiful woman there, as in all Moslem countries, has a great commercial value, and it soon came to be lamented that the king of kings should allow so much good property to go to waste. The ingenious countrymen, therefore, spread a thick cushion of hay upon the bottom of the dilch and awaited developments. The next time a condemned beauty was pitched over she landed safely. The attendants on the wall saw nothing of this because of the intense darkness, and when they were sone the next state of the intense darkness, and when they were sone the next state of the intense darkness, and next time a condemned beauty was pitched over she landed safely. The attendants on the wall saw nothing of this because of the intense darkness, and when they were gone, the peasants hiding below picked up the astonished sultana, whom, supposing she must be dead, fancied they were attendanfs in the prophet's paradise. She was soon undeceived; but although she might have had a pretty temper and exercised it freely as a shah's wife, there is nothing like a fall from a high wall to bring an unruly woman to terms. Under her new circumstances, the poor lady had nothing else to do but to accept the situation and look amiable. During the reign of the shah came over the wall that two peasants rose from poverty to affluence and were able to buy titles of nobility."

It was a matter of supreme satisfacion to the young managers, La Shelle & Clark, now in the second season of the existence of the Frank Danlels Opera Company and the opera, "The Wizard of the Nile," to find that the New York crities in passing judgment upon the new operatic productions in the metropo-list his season, in almost over Instance new operatic productions in the metropolis this season, in almost every instance used "The Wizard" as a standard of excellence with which to compare the new works. "The Wizard of the Nile" which will be seen here at the Opera house next Monday and Tuesday, March 22 and 23, with the original cast of last season, and new scenery and costumes, is a shining example of what a combination of business enterprise and good judgment can accomplish.

Ullie Akerstrom

Miss Akerstrom will commence a week's engagement at the Grand Opera House Monday evening next. There will be a change of bill at each performance. Her company is an unusually strong one, which the following from the Jamestown News of February 16 will show: "Jamestown theatre goers are not slow to recognize and appreciate merit, nor are they quick to forget, as was shown last night by the very large audience which greeted Ullie Akerstrom at the opening of her week's engagement. The play was 'Miss Rora,' a piece which affords opportunities for many interesting and emotional situations, and Miss Akerstrom did not fail to bring out the full meaning of her lines in a most feeling and appreciative way that made warm friends of her auditors from the start." Miss Akerstrom will commence Another good audience saw Al. G. Field's splendid aggregation of negro comedians, vocalists and dancers at the comedians, vocalists and dancers at the Grand Opera House last night, in the realistic picture of southern life, entitled "Darkest America." There are many clever specialites during the action of the piece, and those were frequently encored last night. The operatic vinetoscope is a novel feature of the entertninment, introducing splendid vocalists in a potpourri of selections from the popular comic operas. "Darkest America" is an original production, and is deserving of good houses. It will be given at the matines ta-day, and the engagement will close to-night.
